The re-run for the Imo State governorship (s)election will take place next Saturday in 23 Local Government Areas that were marred with irregularities when the (s)election was first held on 11 April.

As we reported here previously, those irregularities include the APC conniving with INEC officials to use of result sheets from Abuja and Kaduna in governor Rochas Okorocha's senatorial zone of Orlu.

However, the PDP are pressing for the total cancellation of the entire results in the state from the 11 April poll due to what they say was "obvious rigging" by Okorocha and the APC.

Expect this to rumble on to the courts for Round Three after the results of the re-run on Saturday are announced.
